1. Mission. The 694th Intelligence Group (694 IG) is an operational component of the Air Intelligence Agency (AIA), executing decisive information operations for tactical, theater, and national operations. The group is tailored to specific mission areas and theaters of operation and consist of worldwide teams of information professionals, securing and maintaining information superiority for the nation.

2. Command. The Group Commander (694 IG/CC):

- 2.1. Is subordinate and accountable to the Commander AIA (HQ AIA/CC).
- 2.2. Coordinates air component operations and issues through Detachment 1, HQ AIA.
- 2.3. Commands and provides oversight of subordinate squadrons, detachments, and operating locations.

3. Responsibilities. The Group:

- 3.1. Focus and leverage all AIA capabilities for Air Force operational partners.
- 3.2. Executes IA policies, plans and directives; interpret directives, orders and regulations; and enforce and maintain standards.
- 3.3. Exercises command and control of AIA personnel and resources allocated to its respective squadrons, detachments, and operating locations.
- 3.4. Participates in theater operations by providing trained personnel, equipment, and tailored operations to gain, exploit, defend and attack information.
- 3.5. Collects, analyzes, produces, and disseminates near-real-time information, meeting requirements of air component and unified commanders and national agencies.

- 3.6. Provides battle space awareness, communications-computer system security, and electronic combat services to tactical war fighters, theater battle managers, and national-level decision makers.
- 3.7. Operates collection platforms, sensors, and systems through subordinate units.
- 3.8. Ensures timely production and processing of performance reports, awards, decoration, and other personnel actions.
- 3.9. Joins with other tenant commanders and Fort Meade hosts to collectively interface with local community leaders.
- 3.10. Functions as “Mayor of the Hill” for the 9800 area of Fort Meade.
